PREFATORY NOTE

This List is primarily concerned with works in the Library relating to inheritance and income taxation in the United States. A portion of the List, however, is devoted to such forms of taxation in foreign countries. The titles of the works on inheritance taxation are first given, and then those on income taxation. Then follow (1) a list of Congressional documents and debates relating to direct taxation, and (2) a list of treatises on the Constitution of the United States which give consideration to the taxing power under the Constitution.

INHERITANCE TAXATION

This subject is treated comprehensively by Max West, "The Inheritance tax," New York, 1893. This work gives a brief historical survey of the taxing of inheritances in continental Europe, the British Empire, and the United States. A history of inheritance taxation from ancient times to the nineteenth century is Schanz, "Studien zur Geschichte und Theorie der Erbschaftssteuer," in Finanz-Archiv, vols. 17 and 18.

Inheritance taxation in the United States, Federal.—See Boutwell, G. S.; Cooley, T. M.; Dunbar, W. H.; Hewitt, L. E.; McDougall, J. A.; Roberts, J. A.; Shearman, T. G.; United States; West, Max; and the list of Congressional documents and debates, pp. 64-74.

Recent discussions are noted under the following headings: Baldwin, F. S.; Comment on the "Muck-rake" speech; Dead hand in wealth, Ferris, A. A.; Hadden, A.; Limitations of fortunes in America; President Roosevelt on multimillionaires; Roosevelt, Theodore; Teague, M. A.

Earlier discussions.—Dunbar, W. H. (tax of 1898); Guthrie, W. D.; Howe, F. C.; Ingersoll, C. J., Speech (1813); McDougall, J. A., Speech (1862); Roberts, J. A. (tax of 1898); Sedgwick, A. G. (tax of 1898); Seligman, E. R. A.; Shearman, T. G.; United States American State papers (taxes in 1794 and 1796); United States, Fifty-fifth Congress, second session (tax of 1898); United States Industrial Commission, contains a summary of Federal legislation; United States Supreme Court; West, Max.

Legal decisions.—See Cooley, T. M.; Dos Passos, B. F.; Goodnow, F. J.; Gray, J. M.; United States Supreme Court.

Inheritance taxation in the States.—Baldwin, F. S.; Clapperton, G.; Desty, R.; Dos Passos, B. F.; Drake, J. N.; Ely, R. T.; Fallows, E. H.; Gray, J. M.; Guthrie, W. D.; Huebner, S.; McElroy, G. W.; Massachusetts; Millis, H. A.; United States Industrial Commission; United States Supreme Court; West, Max; Whitten, R. H.; Wyer, M. G. Huebner, in Quarterly Journal of Economics for August, 1904, gives a summary of State legislation down to 1904. Millis's article in the same magazine for February, 1905, is a similar study, with a tabular statement of legislation, and notes two acts of dates subsequent to Huebner's article. Current legislation may be followed up in the Bulletins of legislation of the New York State library.

Inheritance (succession) taxation in Great Britain.—See pages 21–23 of this list; France, pages 24–25; Germany, pages 26–28; Netherlands, page 29; Belgium, page 29; Switzerland, page 29; British colonies, etc., pages 30, 31.

The operations of the succession tax in Great Britain are set forth in the annual reports of the Commissioners of inland revenue (see p. 22 of this List).

INCOME TAXATION

The United States—General treatises.—See Bolles, A. S.; Bullock, C. J.; Burdick, F. M.; Cooley, T. M.; Dewey, D. R.; Foster, R.; Howe, F. C.; Seligman, E. R. A.; Smith, H. H.; United States Supreme Court.

Discussions and expositions of special acts.—Act of 1798, see Adams, H. C.; Bolles, A. S.; United States, American state papers; Act of 1813, see Adams, H. C.; Ingersoll, C. J.; United States, American state papers; Act of 1861, see Dunbar, C. F.; Hill, J. A.; Howe, F. C.; McDougall, J. A.; Moses, B.; United States, laws, statutes, etc.; Act of 1894, see Foster, R.; Glenn, J. A.; Gould, J. M.; Gray, J. M.; Hill, D. B.; Howe, F. C.; Ogden, R.; Seligman, E. R. A.; Tunell, G. Also for discussion of these four acts, see list of Congressional discussions and debates, pages 64–74.

Constitutionality of the income tax.—The income tax of 1894 was decided to be unconstitutional; see United States Supreme Court, Pollock v. Loan and Trust Company; and also discussions under Boutwell, G. S.; Dutton, W. T.; Edmunds, G. F.; Income tax; Lewis, W. D.; Lippitt, F. J.; Pennoyer, S.; Sewell, R.; Shipman, P. R.; Trickett, N.; Wells, D. A.; West, Max; Whitney, E. B.

General discussions of income taxation are given on pages 45–48 of this List. For income taxation in Great Britain see pages 49–53; France, pages 54–55; Germany, pages 56–60; Austria, page 61; Netherlands, page 62; Switzerland, page 62; Italy, page 62; British Colonies, etc., page 63. The operations of the income tax law in Great Britain are set forth in the annual reports of the Commissioners of inland revenue (see page 50 of this List).

No attempt has been made to render this List complete or even to exhaust the resources of the Library on the subject. The aim has been to serve the interests of the general inquirer, although here and there the specialist may not be without some incidental aid.

Field, William H. The inheritance tax law of Kentucky.

(In The American law review, vol. 40, Sept.-Oct., 1906, pp. 711-720.)

"If the reasoning and the arguments herein presented are sound, the inheritance tax law of Kentucky, however unassailable it might be in other jurisdictions, under the peculiar Constitution of Kentucky is invalid to the extent that it imposes a rate in excess of fifty cents upon each one hundred dollars of value, thus contravening the requirements as to uniformity and equality as well as the demand of the Fourteenth Amendment for equal protection of laws. Under the provisions of the revenue act, however, in the absence of objections going to the foundation of the law itself, it is enforceable to the extent that it is valid."

[New York, 1897.] (2), 25 pp. 8°.

"His argument is worthy of notice not only because of its own strength, but also because it was a representative if not a typical presentation of the case against progressive taxation, and also because much the same line of reasoning was afterward presented before the supreme court at Washington. Mr. Guthrie maintained that the bill was in conflict with the Fourteenth Amendment and with similar provisions in the state constitution, because the tax was unequal and arbitrary, not taxing upon any uniform or just basis; he called it spoliation, socialistic and revolutionary." West, Journal of political economy, vol. 6: 450-451.

Massachusetts. Legislative documents. 1898. House no. 1259.

Report of the committee on taxation, to which were referred the recommendations of the majority and minority of the special commission, and the various bills submitted for carrying out such recommendations. 1898. 98 pp. 8°.

Contains a brief statement of the recommendation of the Commission favoring an inheritance tax, and the conclusion of the Committee that an inheritance tax of five per cent. on both realty and personalty is objectionable, while an inheritance tax on personalty alone, at a rate which would not prove burdensome, would not afford an adequate substitute for the loss of revenue which would result upon the exemption of intangibles.

President Roosevelt on multimillionaires.

Discusses the proposition for a progressive tax and sees practical objections. Holds that, "It would be far better to fix a danger-point on the economic barometer, and decree that beyond that point a testator with many millions must distribute either proportionately to relatives, as is the system in many States of the Continent, or, maintaining liberty of bequest, must only bequeath legacies within that amount to those whom he selects."

"I feel that we shall ultimately have to consider the adoption of some such scheme as that of a progressive tax on all fortunes, beyond a certain amount, either given in life or devised or bequeathed upon death to any individual—a tax so framed as to put it out of the power of the owner of one of these enormous fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount to any one individual."

Opinion delivered by Mr. Justice Clifford.

The case involved "the validity of a Federal succession tax on devolutions of real estate by will or descent. It was argued against the tax that a tax on the succession to land was in effect a tax on the land itself, which would be a direct tax within the narrowest definition, hence it was void because it was not apportioned among the states. The court held that the tax was an excise and not a direct tax, saying that it was the succession or devolution of the land and not the land itself which was the subject of the tax. It was held that although a lien for the tax was laid upon the land itself, that did not make it a tax on the land; but was merely a regulation for enforcing collection, not affecting the nature of the tax. In support of its view the court referred to the act of Parliament from which the act in question was largely copied, and to the English cases giving to that act substantially the same construction." Gray, Limitations of taxing power, 1906: 364.

———— ———— October term, 1895. United States v. Perkins. Error to the Supreme court of the state of New York.
Submitted May 8, 1896. Decided May 25, 1896.

(In U. S. Supreme court. United States reports vol. 163. Cases adjudged in the Supreme court at October term, 1895, pp. 625-631. New York, 1896. 8°.)

"Personal property, bequeathed by will to the United States, is subject to an inheritance tax under state law. Under the statutes of New York the United States are not a corporation, exempted from such inheritance tax."

Opinion delivered by Mr. Justice Brown.

United States. Supreme Court. October term, 1897. Magoun v. Illinois trust and savings bank. Appeal from the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Illinois. Argued January 28, 1898. Decided April 25, 1898.

(In U. S. Supreme Court. United States reports vol. 170. Cases adjudged in the Supreme court at October term, 1897, pp. 283-303. New York, 1898. 8°.)

"The inheritance tax law of Illinois, of June 15, 1895, (Laws of 1895, page 301), makes a classification for taxation which the legislature had power to make, and does not conflict in any way with the provisions of the Constitution of the United States."

Mr. Justice McKenna, delivered the opinion; Mr. Justice Brewer dissenting. Contains a list of cases in which the constitutionality of the taxes has been declared, and the principles explained upon which they are based.

October term, 1899. Knowlton v. Moore. Error to the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of New York. Argued December 5, 6, 7, 1899. Decided May 14, 1900.

(In U. S. Supreme Court. United States reports, vol. 178. Cases adjudged in the Supreme Court at October term, 1899, pp. 41-111. New York, 1900. 8°.)

"The act of Congress of June 13, 1898, c. 448, which is usually spoken of as the War Revenue Act, (20 Stat. 448,) imposes various stamp duties and other taxes. Sections 29 and 30 of the statute, which are therein prefaced by the heading 'Legacies and Distributive shares of Personal Property,' provide for the assessment and collection of the particular taxes which are described in the sections in question. To determine the issues which arise on this record it is necessary to decide whether the taxes imposed are void because repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, and if they be valid, to ascertain and define their true import."

Mr. Justice White delivered the opinion of the court.

October term, 1899. Plummer v. Coler. Error to the surrogate's court of the county of New York, State of New York. Argued February 27, 28, 1900. Decided May 14, 1900.

(In U. S. Supreme Court. United States reports, vol. 178. Cases adjudged in the Supreme Court of the United States at October term, 1899, pp. 115-139. New York, 1900. 8°.)

The court held that a tax on inheritances is not invalidated because of the fact that the property inherited is composed, in whole or in part, of Federal securities and also that no sound distinction can be drawn between the power of the States in imposing taxes on franchises of the corporations composed of individual persons and in imposing taxes upon the right or privilege of individuals to avail themselves of the right to grant and to receive property under the statutes regulating the descent of the property of the decedents.

Opinion of the court delivered by Mr. Justice Shiras.

United States. Supreme Court. October term, 1901. Orr v. Gilman. Error to the surrogate's court of the county of New York. Argued November 25, 26, 1901. Decided January 6, 1902.

(In U. S. Supreme Court. United States reports, vol. 183. Cases adjudged in the Supreme Court at October term, 1901, pp. 278-290. New York, 1902. 8°.)

"The provisions of subdivision 5 of the tax law of the State of New York, which became a law April 16, 1897, are not in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution nor of section 10 of article 1 of the Constitution."

"The Court of Appeals did not err when it held that a transfer or succession tax, not being a direct tax upon property, but a charge upon a privilege, exercised or enjoyed under the laws of the State, does not, when imposed in cases where the property passing consists of securities exempt by statute, impair the obligation of a contract within the meaning of the Constitution of the United States."

Opinion of the court delivered by Mr. Justice Shiras.

But it is conceded by the court that Congress may lawfully impose direct taxes in the District for District purposes without regard to the rule of apportionment, and that Congress is under no constitutional necessity to impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment upon the District of Columbia, or upon the territories, even though such a direct tax is laid upon the States."

✓ Lewis, William Draper. The constitutionality of the income tax.

(In The American law register and review, n. s. vol. 2, March, 1895, pp. 189-195.)
Holds that the Supreme court may rightfully regard the income tax as an indirect tax and that the income tax is a tax not on persons but on property. The writer's opinion is that the crucial point in the case before the Supreme court is whether Congress can draw any lines in an income tax, exempting incomes under a particular figure.

Ogden, Rollo. Beauties of the income-tax law.
(In The Nation, vol. 58, February 22, 1894, pp. 133-134.)
Examines some of the provisions of the proposed income tax which "invites at every turn evasion and false swearing and bribery and intolerable espionage." The sections criticized are those dealing with the collection of the tax, the deduction of certain items in reckoning income and the taxation of corporations. Strictures are made that terms are undefined, that there is ambiguity in the description of deductions which may be made, and that inquisitorial powers are given to deputy collectors.

——— The graver evils of the income tax.
(In The Nation, vol. 58, January 11, 1894, pp. 24-25.)
Declares the income tax to be class legislation of "the most vicious sort." Asserts that national extravagance, corrupt political practice would result from imposition of such a tax. The tax would "exalt the national merit" and tend to centralization. The measure he declares is "thoroughly populistic."

——— The income tax.

(In The Political science quarterly, vol. 9, December, 1894, pp. 610–648.)

Summarily reviews income taxation in the colonies of America, in foreign countries; examines in detail the provisions of the income tax act of 1894, its character and scope, considers objections to the law and its shortcomings, concluding that an income tax must be a permanent part of the tax system.

Seligman, Edwin R. A. The income tax in the American colonies and states.

(In The Political science quarterly, vol. 10, June, 1895, pp. 221-247.)

Gives a synopsis of the provisions of laws taxing profits in the colonies, with a brief summary of income tax systems of the various states.

——— Is the income tax constitutional and just?

(In The Forum, vol. 19, March, 1895, pp. 48-56.)

Although recognizing defects in the law of 1894 the author agrees that it is a move in the right direction. "It is an honest effort to rectify abuses and to secure a true equality."

Examines into the three forms of direct taxation: an income tax, a succession tax, and a general property tax, finding economic and moral objections to each.

——— Taxation on personal property impracticable, unequal and unjust.

New York: Sterling publishing co., 1895. (4), 63 pp. 12°. (No. 45. The Sterling library.)

Shipman, Paul R. A point of constitutional law.

(In The American law register and review, n. s. vol. 2, November, 1895, pp. 733-747.)

Discusses considerations deduced from a dictum of Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, in the income tax cases, that the States "granted the power of apportioned direct taxation, a power just as efficacious to serve the needs of the general government, but securing to the States the opportunity to pay the amount apportioned, and to recoup from their own citizens in the most feasible way, and in harmony with their systems of local self-government."

Smith, Henry H. Income tax.

[Washington: Government printing office, 1893.] 10 pp. 8°.

The author was Assistant register of the Treasury, and addressed a letter to Secretary Carlisle in November, 1893, giving an outline history of income tax legislation to that date.

In this case the decision was rendered that "Direct taxes within the meaning of the Constitution are only capitation taxes as expressed in that instrument and taxes on real estate."

Opinion of the court by Mr. Justice Swayne.

————— October term 1894. Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust company. Appeal from the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York. Argued March 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 1895. Decided April 8, 1895.

(In U. S. Supreme court. United States reports, vol. 157. Cases adjudged in the Supreme court at October term, 1894, pp. 429-654. New York, 1895. 8°.)

Opinion of the court delivered by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller. Mr. Justice Field rendered an additional opinion, while dissenting opinions were given by Mr. Justice White and Mr. Justice Harlan. Arguments of counsel are printed with decisions.

United States. Supreme Court. October term 1894. Pollock v. Farmers' Loan and Trust company. (Rehearing.) Hyde v. Continental Trust company. (Rehearing.) Appeal from the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York. Argued May 6, 7, 8, 1895. Decided May 20, 1895.

(In U. S. Supreme court. United States reports, vol. 158. Cases adjudged in the Supreme court at October term, 1894, pp. 601-715. New York, 1895. 8°.)

Decisions interpreting the act of August 15, 1894 so far as relating to the collecting of an income tax. The income tax features of the law were held to be unconstitutional and void. The opinion of the court, delivered by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, is printed in McClain, Emlin. A selection of cases on constitutional law, pp. 223-235. Boston, 1900. 8°.

Dissenting opinions were given by Harlan, J., Brown, J., Jackson, J., and White, J.

The decisions, are also separately printed and, with the briefs, arguments and other papers in this case and that of Hyde v. Continental Trust Company, heard at the same time, make up an important collection of material on the subject of direct taxes. These documents are in the possession of the clerk of the Supreme Court. Among this material, there may be noted the following:

The teachings of political economists defining direct and indirect taxes. By Max West. 121, 38 pp. 8°.

Extracts from the evidence proving the historic facts, from the general literature and from the authorities, bearing upon the question whether the words "direct taxes," as used in the Federal Constitution embrace a tax on incomes, or are limited to a tax on land only. (2), 71 pp. 8°.

Walker, Francis A. The bases of taxation.

(In The Political science quarterly, vol. 3, March, 1888, pp. 1-16.)
Reply to Spahr on taxation of labor. Discusses incidentally the comparative merits of property and income taxes.

Webster, Sidney. Income tax in 1787.

(In The Nation, vol. 60, March 21, 1895, pp. 215-216.)

Discusses briefs and arguments on the income tax-case and summarizes the brief of Mr. Seward showing that direct taxes existed in 1787.

Wells, David Ames. An income tax: is it desirable?

(In The Forum, vol. 17, March, 1894, pp. 1-13.)

Argument against income tax. Discusses the operations of income tax laws in foreign countries with a criticism of the Massachusetts laws of taxation.

——— Is the existing income tax unconstitutional?

(In The Forum, vol. 18, January, 1895, pp. 536-542.)

Discusses the question as to an income tax being a direct tax out of conformity with Art. 1, sec. 2 of the Constitution, and deciding that it is, asserts the unconstitutionality of the law of 1894.

West, Max. The income tax and the national revenues.

(In The Journal of political economy, vol. 8, September, 1900, pp. 433-451.)

Discusses the meaning of direct taxation, ideas of the makers of the constitution, examines the decisions of the Supreme Court in the Hylton and Springer cases as to their inconsistency with the decision upon the income tax in 1894, thinks an income tax by the Federal government only attainable by an amendment to the Constitution.

White, Horace. The proposed income tax.

(In The Nation, vol. 57, November 30, 1893, pp. 404-405.)

Briefly considers the operations of the income tax laws of the Civil War. Argues that they afford no criteria for estimating the effects of the proposed law, as during war times the patriotism of the people called forth their cooperation which would not obtain in times of peace.

——— Taxation of personal property.

The point of view is "how the existing inequalities in taxation may be avoided, and how personal property may be made to pay its fair share of the public burdens."

Whitney, Edward B. Political dangers of the income-tax decision.

(In The Forum, vol. 19, July, 1895, pp. 521-531.)

Contents that past decisions of the Supreme Court had established the constitutionality of the income tax. Discusses possible evil consequences of conceding the right of the Supreme Court to review the decisions of earlier courts.

The chief findings of the Committee are three in number. Graduation is possible by extending the existing limit of abatements to £1,000. In the case of incomes exceeding £5,000 a super-tax based on personal declaration is also practicable. Finally, differentiation between earned and unearned incomes is practicable, but should be limited to incomes not exceeding £3,000 a year.

"It is then right to recognise that the proposal to apply a graduated income tax, so as to take an increasing share of large income for the state, rests on the same economic and moral basis as the proposal to tax 'unearned increment' in land values or licences . . . The application, therefore, of our social theory of taxation involves careful scientific experimentation, with the object of finding out what proportion of the different sorts and grades of income can be taken without encroaching on living wages and living profits, so as to disturb the application of the factors of production owned and operated by individual wills for private ends."
